Over the fields and through the woods hopped the bunny, woodering what sort of an adveture he would have, when all of a sudden, the bad old Pipsisewah and the worse Skeezicks, who had been hiding among the trees, saw the bunny rabbit.

Oh, ho" cried the Pipsisewah, "this is our chance to catch the rabbit chap, Mr. Skeezicks."

Why have we a better chance today.

Medical authorities prescribed calomel for almost every disease and explained that it was the best and surest of all system purifiers. They say that calomel cleanses the liver, stomach, bowels and kidneys and purifies the blood from all poisons, making the system pure and clean so that nature can quickly reatore the health.

Now that science has purified calomel of all its nauseating and dangerous qualities, the new kind of calomel called "Calotabs," is even more popular than tha old. than at any other time?" the Skeesicks wanted to know Because I have just thought of a fine trick by which we can catch Uncie Wiggily, went on the Pipsiaewah. You know this is the last day of March, when the wind is sure to blow very hard. Now we'll walt until the wind blows Uncle Wiggily upside down, and their we can easily eatch him and carry him off to our dens."

Well, maybe that will be a good way, agreed the Skeezicks. Let's walt for the wind to blow Uncle Wiggily upside down, and their we can easily eatch him and carry him off to our dens."

Well, maybe that will be a good way, agreed the Skeezicks. Let's walt for the wind to blow Uncle Wiggily upside down, and when the March wind blows him over we'll grab him. We have tried many ways of catching him, but he always gots away."

He won't get away this time!" he boanted the Pipsisewah.
So they followed along behind Uncle Wignity, over the fields and through the woods, but, somehow or other, the strong March wind did not blow. There was daily a summer breeze.

"When is he going to turn unside." The wedding gown of Senerita Maris Bonillas, daughter of the ambassador from Mexico, when she became Senori Donna de Caspola at noon on Monday at one of the most beautifully appointed good Let's wig along at one of the most beautifully appointed wedding ceremonies of the year, was of soft white satin with the narrow foundation hung in exquisite duchess lace and pearl embroidered tuile from throat and pearl embroidered tuile from throat the shim, the him arrangement of lace and tuile was most graceful, preperving the slender silhoustte in very modish fashion and roving most becoming to the very pretty young bride as well as in harmony with the gorgeous new uniform of the bridegreom, a lieutenant of the Italian army attached to the Royal guards. Oh, it will bappen soon now." answered the Pip as I call him for short.' I think I feel a breeze.

But it was only a gentle spring one such as come before April showers. The March wind did not seem to want to blow itself out as it sometimes does.

'I'll tell you what we must do,' said the Pipsisewah at last.

What? asked the Skeezicks.

'We must get some hig palm leaf fans and make a March wind of our own!" cried the bad animal.

'Hurray!" cried the bad animal.

'Short be pipsisewah and the Skeezicks.

'That's what we'll do. We'll wave the fans so bard that they'll make a big blow and Uncle Wiggily will be blown upside down and we can catch him then!"

So the Pipsisewah and the Skeezicks hopped off and found some big palm leaf fans in a cocoanut grove. Back they came and, hiding behind Uncle Wiggily, they waved the fans up and down and sideways and through the middle, and they made a very strong breeze.

'Oh, ho! The March wind is blowing!' cried Uncle Wiggily. 'I had better, hide in this hollow stump until it gets tired of breezing. Then I'll come out!"

So he hid in a hollow stump, which he happened to see.

'Ch. we must blow him out of that!' cried the Skeezicks.

So he and the Pipsisewah waved the street hide in this hollow stump, which he happened to see.

And then, all of a sudden, the March wind, himself, seeing what the two bad animals were doing, cried:

"Ha! Now I'll show you what a big pluffed out his cheeks, and he blew ward, and the Skeezicks was blown over sideways, but Uncle Wiggily safe in the hollow stump, wasn't blown at all. Then the March wind blew the two bad animals far away, so they couldn't get Uncle Wiggily that day.

And then the March wind blew very softly, and said:

"Come on out, Uncle Wiggily. It's all right."

Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth, although discontinuing her Thursday evening receptions during Lent, has established a short series of afternoon parties for the same day, with bridge, followed by tea, at which she is wearing new demitolists right from Paris. One of the most becoming is in blue chiffon, showing the long graceful lines with its embellishment in the new blue pallettes applied in deep band at the hem. On another Thursday afternoon Mrs. Wadsworth 'wore a taupe chiffon embroidered in a medium shade of shiue silk in panel effect, with elbow sleeves, which are one of the signs of the times. Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth,

Mrs. Henry F. Dimock is wearing a satin and chiffon afternoon gown in one of the popular blue shades, but much lighter fone than the average matron selects, with one of the ostrich trimmed hats, a rather large, round shape, with plumes of still lighter blue drossing the crown. At her own days at home Mrs. Dimock, who was formerly of New York and a sister of the late William C. Whitney, invariably wears gray, always from Paris and usually of chiffon, in a draped model, one of which is heavily embroidered in the now popular beads.

Then J. W. Cullen, the superintendent, and assistants began dissembling the crates in real professional style. The first box opened disclosed four fine, large specimens of the genuine Texas rattler.

The fact that there was no glass cage surrounding the rattlers and the probability of one or two escaping, caused a near panic in the crowd, which dispersed quicker than children at a school fire drill.

While the crowd looked on at a respectful distance, Mr. Cullen and his workers unboxed 40 snakes of various types, including about 10 rattlers, geveral blue and yellow bulls and divers other varieties from both Texas and Mexico.

Cover one-half to three quarters of an inch, and as soon as the carrots are about two inches in height, thin to an even stand with the plants two to three inches apart. Where the plants are not too thick in the row the thinning need not be done until some of them are large enough to use on the table as baby carrots.

Late plantings of carrots may be made following early cabbage, lettuce or radiales. The second or site plantings should mature just before frost and are better for storage than the earlier planting.

Early apring parsnips may be grown and used the same as early carrots, but ordinarily are planted later, are given a full season to mature and are used only during the winter months.
